The Nashville Union and American of last Februrary gives a fearfully grandilequent account of a great rebel meeting in of the officer who came on here with this city to organize a company to us solish Lincoln and all his weeping relatives. Read it:

About two o'clock the peuling notes of the drum and fife were heard upon the streets, followed by a large crowd, bearing a banner with the following inscription:

NEVERN

We noticed in the front ranks of the procession Ex-Governor Neil S. Brown, Hon. Andrew Ewing, Gen. R. C. Foster, third. Bringing up the rear was the Hon. E. H. Ewing, cheering on the people and urging them to the rescue. We also observed the Hon. G. A. Henry, Senator to the permanent Congress, and many others of the most wealthy and infinential citizens of the State.

They marched through the principal streets of the city, amid the waving of handkerchiefs by the ladies on the side-walks, to the Public Square, where they were entertained with able and eloquent speeches from Gov. Brown, the Hons, G. A. Henry, Andrew Ewing, Judges Baxter and Turner, all of whom had marched up in the procession. The speakers explained the object of the meeting to be for the purpose of raising and equipping a regiment for the defence of our homes against the Hessian invaders. It was a grand spectacle, to see the frosty-headed men of the city in that procession-men, too, who were not prompted by any other motives than a sense of duty and of our danger-men whose voices had reverberated through the halls of legislation, and whose eloquent appeals will not now be unheeded-men who were not you, not as officers, but as privates.

And now "Gentle Shepherd"-"Romans, countrymen and lovers," tell us where that "frosty-headed guard" has hoisted its awfol banner with the above inscription?

Where is R. C. Foster? Where is S. Brown? Where are Judges Baxand Turner? Where is the grandson of Patrick Henry? They talked boldly but did they march to the tented field? Nix! They blustered grandiloquently but did they go to meet the aforesaid Hessians? Nary time! They raised their "voices which had often reverbeyated through the halls of legislation," but did they fight? Not a bit of The "mud-sills" the "flap-eared Dutch and red-mouthed Irish" were impressed to do the fighting and Major Gustavus Adolphus Henry went to Richmond, to get his $3000 a year and mileage.
